

Butterflies hunt for insects!

As part of our science topic, we wanted to investigate the different types of habitats insects like to live in. So, we popped on our wellies and ventured out into our school grounds. We used pooters to help us look at the insects safely. After collect the insects, we found out that most of them like to live underneath logs and leaves to keep warm and sheltered.

